

PRESS RELEASE

In relation to the news released yesterday [on 19 May 2016] by the website and newsletter GGRAsia (<http://www.ggrasia.com/sci-games-can-deploy-any-etgs-in-macau-mooberry/>), in which Derik Mooberry, executive vice president and group chief executive of gaming at Scientific Games Corp. stated that the courts have ruled in their favour regarding the right to sell any electronic table game in the Macau market, the following clarification must be made:

No decision was granted by the Macau Courts in favour of Scientific Games Corp./ SHFL regarding the right to sell any electronic table game in the Macau market.

In fact, such a legal dispute, involving Mr. Jay Chun, Natural Noble Limited and LT Game Limited, on the Plaintiff's side, and SHFL Entertainment (Asia) Limited on the Defendant's side, is pending trial and, therefore, is pending decision (court case no. CV1-12-0041-CAO).

Differently, court case no. CV2-13-0040-CAO, brought by SHFL Entertainment (Asia) Limited against Natural Noble Limited, Mr. Jay Chun, LT Game Limited and Paradise Entertainment Limited was dismissed earlier this month. In this proceeding, SHFL Entertainment (Asia) Limited alleged that the abovementioned entities and/ or individuals were infringing the rules of fair competition. The Court decided to dismiss this proceeding after SHFL Entertainment (Asia) Limited withdrawing its claim.

The aforesaid entities and/ or individuals continue to defend their rights conferred by two patents registered in the Macau Special Administrative Region, which include the exclusive rights of its use and therefore the right to prevent any use by a third party in infringement of the invention patented.
